Archives of the Center for Jewish Culture
Oral History Collection
New Bedford/Fall River Jewish Community, 1979-[ongoing]

Manuscript Collection – CJC/MC 23

Extent: 164 interviews on 236 audiocassette or VHS tapes (interviews are continually being added to this collection)

Historical note: the oral history program sponsored by the Center for Jewish Culture began in 1981, inspired by professor Robert Waxler's interview of Fisher Abramson in August of that year. In all, Robert Waxler completed the first 8 interviews entered into the collection in the summer and early fall of 1981. Volunteers Judy Barry and Barbara Kaplan were then charged to organize an oral history program for the Center, in preparation for the exhibit on the history of the Jewish communities in Fall River and New Bedford, which took place in the UMD library in 1982. Most interviews took place between 1981 and 1996, and then again in 2002-2003.

Scope and contents note: Tapes are numbered and boxed in the order they were completed and logged in the collection. For convenience, there is an alphabetical index included with this finding aid. An accession list of interviews, an index of tape contents, biographical sheets on each narrator, and releases are contained in 3-ring binders with the collection. The accession list is arranged in the order that the interviews were conducted and logged in, but all other lists are arranged alphabetically. About 47 of the interviews have been transcribed.

Access: unrestricted, but publication or exhibit or any use of these materials should be discussed with the Archivist and with the families of individuals interviewed.

Processing note: Reboxed and finding aid written, February '02 by JFarrar.
